
Use of sub contractors statement

The main sub contractors we use are printing companies and, less frequently, photographers. With all of the printing companies we use (and most of the photographers) we have a working relationship which goes back at least five years, some over fifteen.

Those relationships persist because we treat our suppliers fairly, pay them promptly and, as with all our relationships, look to the long term. More specifically in relation to potential new suppliers:

- we take references
- we run a credit check using the Credit Safe service to which we subscribe
- we look at their past work to make sure they are up to the job.

We almost never subcontract anything that we do in-house, such as design and front-end website work.

We are always happy to show clients which suppliers we are using.
